DETAILED ACTION

In the applicant's response filed 10/1/03, applicant amended the claims by adding the elected species into the base claim, thus making all claims readable on the elected species. However, the applicant also amended claims 40-42 to further comprise an additional DNA sequence that is recognized by one of three additional different complexes. This amendment necessitated the further election of species set forth below.

Election/Restrictions

This application contains claims directed to more than one species of the generic invention. These species are deemed to lack unity of invention because they are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

The species are as follows:

1. The claimed method drawn to use of DNA sequences comprising gene-transcription repressing chromatin which is recognized by HP1, which further comprise an additional gene-transcription repressing chromatin of a different sequence recognized by a different complex (each additional sequence is drawn to a different species); select one of claims 40-42.

Art Unit: 1636

Applicant is required, in reply to this action, to elect a single species to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. The reply must also identify the claims readable on the elected species, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered non-responsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

The claims are deemed to correspond to the species listed above in the following manner:

Claims 40-42 are each drawn to a different species.

The following claim(s) are generic: claim 25.

The species listed above do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, the species lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons: The different species are drawn to the use of DNA sequences that further comprise a DNA sequence that is recognized by a different complex and thus have sequences and structures different from each other and thus lack the same or corresponding special technical features.
